

Dr Greg Martin

Position: Partner

Education:

Wits University, South Africa
Medical Degree

London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine
MSc Public Health in Developing Countries

University of South Africa
Masters in Business Administration

Professional Membership:

Registered with the General Medical Council
(UK)

Years of Experience: 10

Fields of Experience:

Health Systems, Health Policy. Project
Management.

Countries worked in: UK, Serbia, Indonesia,
South Africa, Ghana, Switzerland

Biographical Summary

Greg has a longstanding interest in public health in developing countries. As a medical doctor he gained clinical and research experience in Johannesburg, South Africa followed by work at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine as a Clinical Research Fellow doing research into maternal health in Ghana and Indonesia. Greg was later appointed as the Head of Science and Research at the World Cancer Research Fund where he ran a grant programme and project managed the production of the WCRF Diet and Cancer Report.

With his broad understanding of public health and economics and years of senior management experience, Greg has gone on to add value as a consultant working on projects for the World Health Organization, the London School of Economics, Centre for Rural Health and Pepsico to name a few.

Greg is also the founder and Editor-in-Chief of the academic journal Globalization and Health.

For further information about the consultancy services provided by Greg Martin, please contact contact@cstoneglobal.com